

September 22 2010

Finding Consumer Information

Looking to buy a new dishwasher? Want to find out which mp3 player you should purchase? We have a few suggestions on where to find consumer information.

1. We have Consumer Reports available in print and online. Both are available for in-library use only, so stop by the Reference Desk and we can direct you to them or set you up on our database computer.
2. Looking for free consumer sites? ConsumerSearch.com is an excellent source. They aggregate reviews, analyze them, and then put the results in an easy-to-use package.
3. ConsumerReview.com provides reviews by users just like you.
4. ConsumerWorld is another free resource providing non-commercial guides to consumer resources and products.

Reference blog categories:

Online Resources

Research tips

Web Resources

Source URL: <http://www.hplibrary.org/content/finding-consumer-information>