Star-crossed

by Barbara Dee

Reading Level: Grades 4 through 8

Eighth-grader Matilda, who goes by Mattie, is not used to being in the spotlight. She is perfectly happy playing the side character of Paris in her middle-school's production of Romeo and Juliet. However, she finds herself becoming more and more interested in the language of Shakespeare, as well as the cute new girl from England. But when the lead playing Romeo drops out, she is asked to step in to replace him. The only problem is, her crush Gemma Braithwaite is playing Juliet!

Hideout

by Watt Key

Reading Level: Ages 10-13

When 12-year-old Sam's father gave him his very own fishing boat, it came with rules. He had to wear a life jacket. He had to drive his boat carefully. And he was to stay on the Pascagoula River. But when Sam's school year ends with him being badly beaten by bullies, Sam feels the need to prove his courage. So he breaks his father's rule and steers his boat into the dangerous waterways of the nearby bayou where he finds a half-wild boy living in an abandoned fishing shack. The desperate boy begs Sam to keep him a secret. That promise launches Sam into a dangerous adventure...one that may cost him his life.

Zenn Diagram

by Wendy Brant

Reading Level: Ages 14-18

17-year-old Eva does not like human touch. She doesn't even like to touch someone else's personal items like cell phones or a favorite sweater. People think Eva is on the spectrum or a germaphobe she is neither but lets them think so. Only her parents know the real reason. Eva is a touch empath. One touch of a person or their important possession drops Eva down a hole of their emotions, secrets and desires. Eva has managed to get through high school without being overwhelmed by following her no touch rule. But then she meets Zenn a handsome, gentle funny boy. A boy that she would really like to touch.

The Wizard's Dog

by Eric Kahn Gale

Reading Level: Grades 3 through 5

Nosewise the dog thinks doors are a nuisance. Doors always keep him away from interesting things. Especially the door to the room of magic. One day, the door opens and Nosewise is allowed to enter a world of enchantment. When Merlin's apprentice Morgana playfully drapes her magic stone around his neck, Nosewise begins to talk. Morgana and Nosewise are delighted...Merlin is not. He decrees that Nosewise will never get to use the stone again. Or will he?

The Bad Guys

by Aaron Blabey

Mr. Wolf has a bad reputation. None of it is his fault. No matter what the three pigs and Little Red Riding Hood (not to mention Grandma) say, Wolf is a good guy. He just has to show the world his good guy nature. So he forms the "Good Guys Club" and recruits Mr. Shark, Mr. Snake and Mr. Piranha as the other founding members. Despite their unfortunate instincts to attack and eat anything that comes their way, Mr. Wolf is sure all four of them can prove their goodness to the world...they just need the right mission.

Sea Otter Rescue

by Suzi Eszterhas

Learn about the amazing and difficult job of rescuing sea otters and see some adorable pictures of baby sea otters at the same time. Get a peek inside the secret wildlife hospital at the Alaska SeaLife Center. Baby sea otters look small, but an adult sea otter is the same size as a German Shepard and about 10 times more work to take care of! While this book would definitely help with a report on a marine mammal it is also interesting to read for fun - did I mention adorable sea otter babies?
